Pastors Notes

Where the light is?

When something is wrong, you want to see and look for a light that tells you where you can walk. When you need help, you look for a helping hand. When you are sick, you look for a doctor to cure you. When you want to learn, look for a teacher to teach you. When you need someone to listen to you, look for a good friend. And above all we must always seek God, the divine light capable of transforming everything. But perhaps without realizing it, you get used to asking for everything and receiving everything. Be careful, because the best way to grow is to give. You are called to be a light, to give light to others. God calls you to extend your hand to your Church, to your friends, to your family, and to those in need. God calls you to be a light with your prayer, with your time, with your testimony and with your possibilities. Who is the true light? Christ, and only Christ is the true light. I invite you to discover and transmit the light of Christ that is in you.

You are called to give light. How to do it? You do it by transmitting, teaching, healing, comforting, and supporting souls. Transmit the light of Christ that is in you. If you, who are called to be the light of Christ, and you do not heed his word, no one will do it for you. God calls you to be a light in our Church, in our diocese, in our community. It's time to give, it's time to be generous.
